

Amy Gottlieb serves as the U.S. Migration Director of the American Friends Service Committee. Amy is responsible for leading AFSC's work to address the economic and political drivers of migration and ensure that migrants' rights are respected in all circumstances. AFSC's migration justice work supports migrants, refugees, and internally displaced people. In addition to offering legal services, training, human rights monitoring, and humanitarian relief, AFSC supports immigrant-led organizing and advocacy.

Amy previously served as AFSC's Associate Regional Director for the northeast region. In this role, she was responsible for supporting programs in the Northeast Region that focus on Immigrant Rights, Healing Justice, and Youth Leadership. She was instrumental in the growth of direct legal services and organizing and advocacy work. Amy has years of experience in practicing and teaching immigration law, and she has been a longtime advocate for humane immigration policies, especially with a focus on the intersection of immigration and criminal legal systems.

Amy worked from 2001 – 2014 as Program Director of the AFSC Immigrant Rights Program in Newark, and prior to that as a staff attorney there from 1996 - 2001. Amy also worked as a Visiting Assistant Clinical Professor in the Cardozo Immigration Justice Clinic during 2012. Amy graduated from Rutgers Law School - Newark in 1996, where she has taught immigration law as an adjunct professor. She is the former chair of the steering committee of the Detention Watch Network, and has been a proud board member of Houses on the Moon Theater Company for over 20 years.
